

CLEAN BATHROOM SINK, TOILET, AND TUB

Like my mom always says, “You all like to have a clean bathroom. Well, someone’s gotta clean that sucker.” And she is so right. Have you ever been to a nasty bathroom? Maybe when you were on a road trip. It’s horrible! And that’s exactly how any bathroom will get without a little Tender Loving Care.

Clean a bathroom twice, or two bathrooms once each ... and smile while you are doing it. It’s really not that bad, and the blessing of having a clean bathroom is so totally worth it.

So, our challenge is going to be to get a bathroom cleaned. It’s a dirty job, but someone’s got to do it. And you know what else? Once you have cleaned it a couple of times, it sure does make you want to keep it cleaner in the future.

1. Remove all the items from the bathroom. I’m talking toothbrushes, mats, bottles, everything. And, by the way, be careful where you put them, some of those bottles and things can be a bit mucky themselves.

2. Sanitize the toilet. You’ll need to use bleach and a toilet brush, or you could use one of those newfangled toilet scrubbers. Bottom line, you need to scrub it well.

3. Now with bathroom spray, spray and wipe down the toilet seat, the rim, and even the sides of the toilet to the floor. I usually wipe up with toilet paper so I can throw it right into the toilet.

4. Now, spray down the other bathroom surfaces and wipe them down.

5. The sink will need scrubbing. I usually use the spray there, and then half fill the sink and wash everything down the plug hole.

6. Clean out that bathtub. The spray can come in handy there too. Again, fill the bathtub a little and wash the water down the drain. A cloth can also be useful to get rid of soap scum lines.

7. Finally, that floor will need mopping or vacuuming.

These are some very basic guidelines. Go through these with your parents and customize them for your particular bathroom.
