

WRITE A THANK YOU NOTE

'Tis the season and gifts are being exchanged. You know, I'm not sure whether I prefer giving gifts or receiving them. But I'll say this, I do like the joy that gifts bring into people's lives and how they are perfect for telling a person you really care about them.

Write three thank you notes to people who have given you a gift or shown you kindness.

One thing we have to be very careful about is not coming off as ungrateful. Someone has spent their hard earned money that they could've spent on themselves. That really is a big deal. One of the best ways to show our gratitude is write them a thank you note. So let's look at how this simple thing, makes all the difference in a person's life.

1. You'll need a new blank card or a piece of nice stationary (piece of high quality paper).
2. First, greet the person that you are writing the card to. Then thank them for the gift or whatever kind thing they have done for you.
3. Tell them how much you liked it and what a difference it has made in your life. If for instance, it was a toy, you might say, "My raccoon buddies and I have had so much fun playing with it. It was the most awesome boomerang I have ever thrown." Or words to that effect. Feel free to change it up if you are not a raccoon and you did not receive a boomerang.
4. Now, perhaps ask some questions or talk about the life of the person who gave you the gift. Remember, it's not all about you, you need to return the love.
5. Perhaps finish the letter telling them how much you look forward to seeing them again soon.

And there you have it. A wonderful note that makes the person that gifted you feel the gift was money well spent.
